Introduction

KIC is a popular place for surrogacy services in India.

Services are comprehensive and all inclusive.

Surrogacy is legal in India.

1. Indian Council of Medical Research or ICMR issued guidelines on commercial surrogacy. Commercial surrogacy is being run on those guidelines as they are government initiated.
2. In India, surrogacy was allowed without gender-bias and without marital status-bias for years. In 2012, Indian government banned single parent surrogacy and constrained married heterosexual couples. Condition: they should have completed two years of married life in order to be eligible for surrogacy.

Surrogacy

A woman who carries a child for someone else is called a surrogate/ surrogate mother. The process is called surrogacy.

Surrogates differ.

1. A woman who is artificially inseminated either by a donor or by a child-seeker is called a traditional surrogate. The surrogate becomes the genetic mother as her egg(s) is responsible for pregnancy and birth of a child/ children.

2. A woman who carries embryos made from IVF treatment is called a gestational surrogate. The surrogate mother is not genetically related to the baby/ babies. Multiple births happen more with IVF treatment.

Why India?

One of the greatest civilizations in the world took place in India. One can easily guess how developed India is. India is a hot-destination for surrogacy (refer Introduction).

Reasons.

1. Easy availability of young, fit women willing to be surrogates
2. Availability of high-profile medical practitioners and technologically advanced hospitals with some of the highest pregnancy and live birth rates in the world.
3. Less complicated legal framework
4. Excellent Obstetric and pediatrics care
5. Low overall cost
